A Bill Introduced Today For a $100,- 000 Government Building at Mayfield, Graves Co.

POSTMASTER MEETS PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—By a series of skillful questions, Congressman Ollie James, of Kentucky late yesterday afternoon forced a republican, Henry Cullen Adams, of Wisconsin, to lay at the door of his party, responsibility for the defeat of Myron T. Herrick, for governor of Ohio, and the election of Patison, the democratic candidate.

Mr. Adams said that Secretary Taft's Akron speech did the work.

He is the first republican who has openly made the declaration, and the statement created a sensation.

He did not intend to go so far, but fell a victim to James' prodding.

Yesterday afternoon Ollie James introduced a bill appropriating $100,000 for a postoffice building at Mayfield, Ky.

Postmaster Fisher, of Paducah, was presented to the President today by Congressman Ollie James.

BLOCK MAP

IS RADIALLY NEEDED BY THE CITY FOR ASSESSING PROPERTY.

The Supervisors Not Near Through and Will Recommend One.

The city board of supervisors will not complete its work for sometime, and it can not be foretold how much the assessment will be increased. The board will recommend to the council, to facilitate the work hereafter, that a map of all of the property by blocks be made and the ground on a block be assessed, all at the same value, and the value of the building and improvements on it added to that amount, and that a committee of three, two of whom shall be real estate men, be appointed to go over the map and appraise the property. The board claims that in this way only can a fair valuation be placed on the property.

Such a map would require six months to complete, and would cost about $5,000 but it would be a valuable thing and one that would soon pay for itself so the board thinks.

The charter allows the board to sit 28 days, and it has already been in session nearly two weeks, yet its work is not near finished.

MANY CITIES

Have Delegates at Municipal Reformers' League.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Reformers from cities gathered here to attend the conference called by the Municipal Voters' League of this city to discuss the subject, "The extent to which municipal elections should be separated from national party politics and the control of national political parties, and the best means by which such separation as may be deemed advisable can be brought about."

More than fifty delegates from many sections of the country had registered before the meeting was called to order by President Walter L. Fisher, of the Municipal Voters' League of this city.

A few of the suggestions made by the speaker for the separation of national and municipal politics are as follows:

That the election should be held upon different dates; that it should be impossible to vote a straight party ticket by a single cross upon a ballot, and that the names of all candidates should be arranged upon the ticket in alphabetical order—the reduction of elective municipal offices as far as possible.

A $3,500 MARKET WOULD YIELD $1,000

Think Some of the City Officials of Paducah.

Auxiliary Building Would Not Cost a Great Deal and Would Pay Well.

NEW BOARDS MAY NOT AGREE

Sec'y S. A. Fowler of the board of works, said today that something would have to be done to relieve the pressure for stands at the market house, as he has a great many more applications than he has benches and stands, and is in a quandary.

The mayor is very anxious to have another market house built this year, if it can be done, and says it should not cost much and would be a good investment for the city.

He claims that for $3,500 the city can put an auxiliary market somewhere out in the city, with forty benches or stalls and that they will readily rent for $25 a year each, making a revenue of $1,000 a year. The expense after the building is erected would be small so the city would make a good thing on the investment.

The mayor is in favor of putting a market at Tenth and Broadway. If the property can be gotten free of any expense, and if not there, on South Tenth street, at about Ohio or Tennessee. The street is very wide there, and space could be easily be given up for the purpose and it would cost nothing.

The new council, however, is not much in favor of many improvements this year aside from the imperative ones. It is anxious to put the electric light plant in condition and to extend the sewerage system, and thinks that this should be done before anything else in the way of permanent improvements is considered.

It has made an allowance of $2,000 for the preliminary work on the sewer extension this year, and will push the work on it in earnest.

AFTER PRISONERS

MARSHAL J. T. BARNETT ARRIVED FROM EARLINGTON LAST EVENING.

Took Major Galtner, Wanted For Alleged Murder, Back This Morning.

Marshal J. T. Barnett, of Earlinton, Ky., arrived in Paducah last night to take back Major Galtner, colored, wanted in that city for murder.

Galtner was arrested here yesterday afternoon by Detectives Moore and Baker, who caught him at 11th and Jones streets after searching the city for two nights and days. Galtner seemed unconcerned about his arrest. He is a musician and has been playing in saloons and at private houses since he came to Paducah.

He is charged with killing a negro named Holman on the 25th. He and Holman had bought a guitar together and Galtner claims to have paid $3.50 on the instrument. They quarreled and Holman advanced with a knife. Galtner pulled a pistol and shot once, the ball going through Holman's chest and entering a woman's hip. Galtner says the woman's testimony will clear him.

Detective Will Baker accompanied Marshal Barnett and his prisoner to Earlinton.

Marshal Barnett, however, tells a different story about the killing. He says that Galtner started out with a 45 calibre pistol after Holman and not finding him where he thought he would, went to Holman's house and in the presence of his family, consisting of seven members, started a quarrel; that Holman told him to take the guitar to avoid trouble but before he could leave the room Galtner pulled his gun and shot him. Galtner is also suspected of killing a man at Kansas City, Mo., eleven years ago.

YOUTHFUL TRAMP

8-YEAR-OLD COLORED BOY RODE ENGINE TENDER.

Came All the Way to Paducah and Was Found by an Illinois Central Officer.

Special Officer Dick Tolbert, of the Illinois Central, yesterday came across one of the youngest and most seasoned species of the hobo genus since his experience as a railroad special officer.

Mr. Tolbert investigates every open car to see that no littersers are sleeping in them or trying to steal a ride. He found an eight-year-old negro boy in a car near the cinder pit. He asked him what he was doing in the car.

"I jes come in toe sleep while ma pap eats de dinnah I jes brought him," the boy replied.

He was told to clear out and not use the cars as a lodging house, and the boy left. Later the officer came across him several other times and finally learned he was a seasoned hobo who had stolen a ride on the tail of an engine from Memphis to Paducah. He was on to all the dodges to get around railroad men, and had even pointed out to Officer Tolbert his supposed father, a big darkey who was busy under an engine shoveling out cinders in the pit.

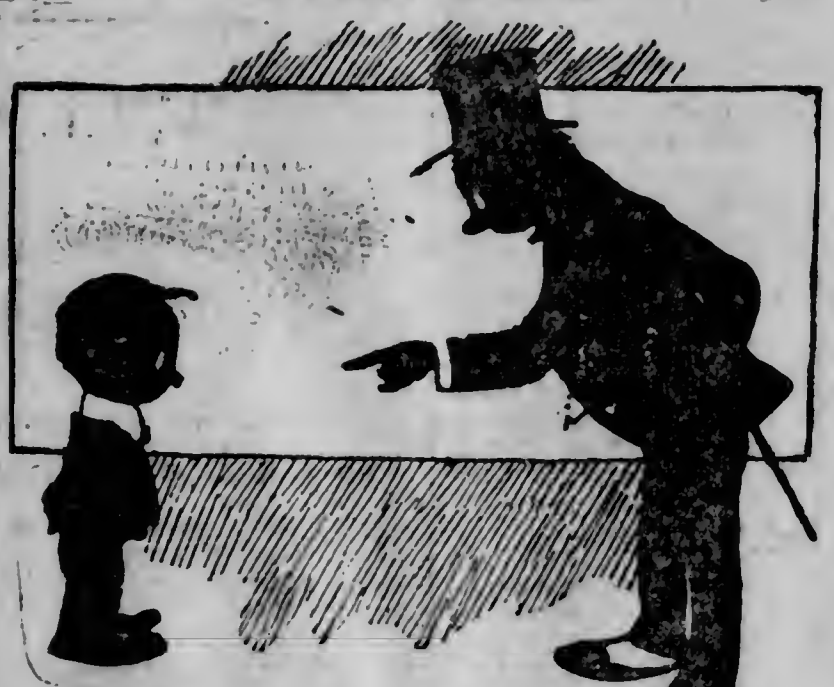

The youthful hobo was not molested and the last seen of him he was making for the woods, presumably to lay out until some train started out towards Louisville, where he admitted he was going.

HARD FIGHT

BEING MADE BY A FORMER PADUCAH BOY.

Lee Bernheim Trying to Get His Seat in the Legislature.

A contest over a legislative seat at Frankfort, of unusual interest in Paducah, is that of Lee Bernheim, formerly of Paducah, a son of Mr. L. W. Bernheim, now of Louisville. Mr. Bernheim is a Republican and made the race for the legislature in one of the legislative districts in Louisville.

How he was eulogized out of the place is thus told in a Frankfort dispatch about the contest:

Statements were made to the committee in the Bernheim vs. Slattery case tonight. Judge Burnett appearing for Mr. Bernheim and James P. Edwards for Mr. Slattery. This is a committee four of the seven members of which are Republicans. Representative R. W. Miller, a Democrat, is chairman. The Bernheim case is rested, entirely on the Twenty-seventh precinct of the Sixth ward. It was contended by Judge Burnett that there was no election in that precinct because the voting place had been moved to Water street. He made the statement that the stub showed that sixty-five had voted in alphabetical order, and that sixty-nine people recorded as voting had not voted at all. According to the proof, he said, that precinct should be thrown out, by doing which Mr. Bernheim would win by 159 majority.

Mr. Edwards, appearing for Mr. Slattery, explained that the voting place was moved because the Democratic officers had been told that no voting could be done at the regularly appointed place. Mr. Edwards read from the testimony of several of the contestant's witnesses saying they had voted on Water street, and saw their ballots deposited in the box. Patrolman Purford, who was stationed near the precinct all day, said that he saw voters going in and out of the voting place throughout the day. Mr. Edwards declared that twelve of the contestant's witnesses and eight of the contestant's witnesses declared that they had voted at the Water street booth. Mr. Edwards declared that Mr. Bernheim had spent some hundreds of dollars in his race, while Mr. Slattery had spent only $25. Mr. Edwards explained that there was no alphabetical voting in that precinct, but there had been alphabetical recording. The stubs were filed in alphabetically after the voting was done in the natural way. The committee adjourned to read the proof.

WORSER THAN A CANCER.

A cancer means death. But there are conditions of life worse even than death. Cancerous ulcers can at least be dressed, and the foul discharges disposed of satisfactorily; but when the mucous membrane becomes inflamed by catarrh there is no opportunity of dressing the parts.

The sufferer, in the first stages, before the cold becomes chronic, can secure a quiet state of cleanliness by a frequent use of his handkerchief, but the dreadful "dropping down" into the throat finally sets in, and the victim is absolutely helpless.

PORTER'S CATARRH-O immediately relieves all discharges both outward through the nose, and inward into throat. A single box usually cures, and the first application relieves the frequent use of his handkerchief, but the dreadful "dropping down" into the throat finally sets in, and the victim is absolutely helpless.

PORTER'S CATARRH-O simply cures by its antiseptic properties. Price, 50c. Postage prepaid.

Sturges, Ky., Jan. 12.—A recent article that the "Sturges mines are still idle" is in every instance incorrect. New laborers are coming in every day, and at present there are over 100 men at work.

BAD DRAINAGE

NECESSITATES SEVERAL OF THE STREETS BEING REBUILT.

Among Them Are West Monroe, Madison, Harrison and Parts of Clay Street.

The board of public works has discovered that Monroe, Madison and Harrison streets, from Fourteenth street to Sixteenth street, will have to be rebuilt this year. The grades of the streets are too low and since the Illinois Central Railroad Co. has improved, or is improving its property along these streets, the drainage, on account of the low grades, is bad and will have to be remedied.

The board also hopes to have Monroe, Madison, Harrison and Clay streets improved with granite sidewalks, which will be a good improvement to that locality. This, too, would help the drainage which has always been bad, and a source of much complaint.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN ELECTION LAW

Louisville Bar Association Prepares New Bill.

Makes Sweeping Changes in Present Law and Every Effort Will Be Made to Pass It.

COMMITTEE TO URGE IT

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 12.—The Louisville Bar Association has placed itself on record as favoring sweeping changes in the present election law, and took steps to advocate these proposed changes for adoption by the present legislature. The committee on judiciary and law reform, which had been at work on these proposed changes, since the annual meeting, December 28, secured a called meeting of the association for the purpose of presenting these proposed amendments. They were adopted without dissent and John B. Haskin, president of the association, was instructed to appoint a committee to make the amendments to Frankfort and have them presented to the legislature. It is the purpose of the association to keep several members of this committee on the ground throughout the session in order to do anything possible to secure passage of the amendments. The committee which drew the amendments consists of James P. Helm, chairman; A. P. Humphrey, W. O. Harris, E. J. McMott and A. S. Hrandels.

Some amendment changes the time of registration from October to the third Tuesday in May. Registration officers who shall also be officers of election, it is provided, shall be appointed on the first Tuesday in May, and cannot be removed except for good cause. If officers of election for either party fail to put in their appearance on election morning, then the election commissioners shall have power to appoint others to fill their places after an hour's wait for the tardy ones. If this is not done by the election commissioners then the officers under the proposed amendments shall be chosen by the officers of the opposing party. If no such officers are present, then the voters waiting shall have power to choose the officers. If a voter desiring to register is challenged, then it is provided he shall have the right to bring in three citizens to swear to his identity while the challenger also has the right to produce three citizens to disprove the claims. If he cannot sign his name to an affidavit, a description of his personal appearance must be appended beneath his signature. It is further suggested that election officers should not be compelled to live in the precinct in which they serve.

The association further agreed to provide in this proposed bill for special registration in any precinct where the registration place had been removed, and voters thus disfranchised. Any change in the registration books ordered by the county clerk or his deputy making the change. A further amendment directing the sheriff to see that proper election officers for counting the ballots was incorporated in the proposed bill.

REVENUE AGENTS WORK REPORTED ON

Agent Frank Lucas, of Paducah, Criticized by Inspector.

He Decides Question of Law Himself and Ignores the Auditor, It Is Said.

AGENTS EARN $40,907 IN ALL.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 12.—State Inspector Hines has laid before the governor for examination and reference to the general assembly his report of investigations, covering five months, of the actions instituted and settlements made by revenue agents for the state at large, and for the county of Jefferson. In the investigation, which was begun at the time of the exposures with reference to settlements made by Revenue Agent A. M. Harrison, of Lexington, the Inspector had several assistants, and examined or caused to be examined the office of every county clerk in the state for records showing proceedings for the assessment of omitted property or suits for delinquent taxes. This investigation has convinced him and those engaged in the work that several changes in the laws governing the actions of these agents are imperative and, following the statistical matter gathered, he makes recommendations as to those changes. The report will be of especial value at this time, when the revenue laws of the state are under discussion by members of the general assembly, and measures affecting the agents are before the body.

The report of the Inspector contains nothing that is sensational, but adds to the charges brought months ago against Agent A. M. Harrison. It shows clearly that under the system which has been practiced by at least one agent accurate information concerning his case cannot be gotten except by interrogating every person likely to have been proceeded against. The investigations made cover the period from July 1, 1902, to August 1, 1905, and the agents whose work has been examined are T. C. Albritton, of Graves county; Frank A. Lucas, of Paducah; A. M. Harrison, of Lexington; George H. Alexander, of Louisville, and A. J. Hlzet, county agent for Jefferson county.

According to the report there were filed out in the state, exclusive of Jefferson county, 3,157 cases, and judgments favorable to commonwealth were rendered in 1,393 instances. There were filed in Jefferson county 1,867 cases and 471 resulted in the assessment of property or judgments favorable to the commonwealth, making a total of 5,024 proceedings and 1,864 judgments. This total does not include a great number of instances where taxpayers have been served with notice or proceedings filed against them, for the reason that in some counties the county clerk kept no record of the cases which were dismissed or abandoned by the agents and the true number of proceedings will greatly exceed the number as given above.

The amount due the state and counties under these proceedings, according to the report, is $335,981.98. For their services the revenue agents named above received, as penalties and commissions, the sum of $61,967.57. The report adds that there is still due the state a sum in excess of $6,356.79, for which "no proper report or charge has ever been made."

Going into the fees or penalties which revenue agents have collected from July, 1902, to August, 1905, the Inspector totals them as follows: To T. C. Albritton, $28,621.17; to Geo. H. Alexander, $15,987.98; to Frank A. Lucas, $6,617.95; to A. M. Harrison, $2,387.19; to A. J. Hlzet, who was appointed in January, 1904, last, $12,359.95.

Discussing the collections made by Revenue Agent Lucas, the Inspector says in part: "Frank A. Lucas, revenue agent for the state at large, seems to have construed the law as giving him not only the right to determine upon the assessment and valuation of property, but also the right to collect the taxes due upon the assessments. It seems to be his general practice or plan to collect from as many taxpayers as possible by agreement as to the valuation and years to be paid on, and when he completed his work for a county he filed with the county clerk a list, giving names and assessments. This list is in the form of an order of court assessing the property, and is recorded as such by the clerk. The amount of taxes due under the list he pays to the sheriff of the county or remits the amount due the state with a report to the auditor."

"It has been and is impossible to check up his transactions, as there is no record or basis upon which an investigation can be made, as to whether or not he has assessed property and collected taxes from numerous people to whom he mails notices of liability for taxes, with the threat to institute proceedings in the county court for the assessment of the property, unless the taxes are settled with him; there is no record made of the parties to whom he mails these notices, and if he fails or omits to file with the clerk a full and true list of settlements made by him, the matter is closed, and there is no record by which to ascertain the amount due the state and county."

Farther along the Inspector adds:

"The practice is not only without warrant of law, and seriously objectionable, because there can be no check or system by which it can be determined that the full amounts due the state and counties and omission of proper charges against sheriffs on their revenue accounts by reason of the failure of the clerks of county courts to forward copies of the order of assessment, which failures have been caused by his assumption of authority, as an officer for the state-at-large, to collect taxes and report same. He has persisted in this practice in the face of notification from the auditor that he had no authority to make collections, and the attention of the auditor is respectfully called to the fact that he continues to transact the duties of his office in a manner not authorized by law."

KENTUCKY BUILDINGS

Bill Introduced in Congress for New One At Paris.

Representative South Trimble has introduced in congress bills appropriating $150,000 for a public building at Paris and $65,000 and $15,000 to improve the buildings at Lexington and Frankfort, respectively.

In the last congress a favorable report was made from the committee on the Paris bill, and should a bill be reported in this congress it would in all probability contain a similar proposition. Some of the members of the house organization have had announced to them hints that, after all, there may be a public buildings bill.

NO MEETING.

Of the Joint Finance Committee Was Held Last Night.

The joint finance committee of the general council did not meet last night on account of the absence of Alderman Earl Palmer. The meeting will be held tonight instead. This will be the first meeting of the finance committee. The members of the two boards have already informally met and decided on about what they will vote for, and it is supposed that the finance committee will recommend what the boards decided on. If it does not, the boards will make what changes they desire when the apportionment ordinance comes up for passage.

Daily Thought.

The bread of life is love; the salt of life is work.—Mrs. Jameson.

BE KENTUCKIANS FIRST.

Be Kentuckians first is the keynote of Gov. Bradley's touching and telling address before the senate of Kentucky. "I think it is a great privilege, and a few others agree with me, to be a republican," says the Louisville Herald. "Others disagree with me, and think it a great privilege to be a democrat. But we can all agree that it is a far greater privilege to be a Kentuckian." The greatest privilege on earth is to be a Kentuckian, because the true Kentuckian is the very best kind of American, and the very best American the best man on earth. The mere fact of being born in Kentucky does not make the true Kentuckian. Henry Clay, George D. Prentice, Jas. G. Beck, Bishop Flager, Bishop Dudley and many another great Kentuckian first saw sunlight in some other state or country, but true Kentuckians were they in that term's best acceptance.

The only true Kentuckianism is that expressed by deeds. Faith without works is dead. There is, in fact, no faith without works. The works demanded of the citizen of Kentucky are the ancestral home virtues, developed by freedom's exercise since 1776. The home virtues are loyalty to friends and kindfolk, tenderness and love, temperance and self-restraint, courage and helpfulness, truth and manliness, cheerfulness and content. The American civic virtues may be all summed up in one word—give every man the square deal.

The stuffing of ballot boxes and the stealing of elections are odious exotics planted on this soil of liberty and righteousness by desperate men; some, unfortunately, natives of Kentucky. They have taken root in places. Honest Kentuckianism calls for their deracination and extermination. Kentucky's pure homes cannot endure if these homes are to be governed by laws made or by laws administered through men unfit for either work. Kentuckians first we shall prove ourselves by re-establishing the high standards of dealing between man and man in business, politics and social intercourse, now departed from everywhere in the states.

The city supervisors say that the report that democratic politicians had approached them and suggested that if property assessments were raised too much it would enable the republicans to reduce the tax rate "and ruin the democratic party in Paducah," was an error, and that no such suggestions were made to them. We are very glad to learn this. The Sun did not state that this had been done, but simply that it was reported and is still reported, if any unscrupulous man had made such suggestion, it would have been no fault of any member of the board of supervisors, as the latter cannot prevent a person stopping him or them on the street and making any suggestion he may see fit. We are glad to find that the supervisors deny the report so promptly. It is a good sign. We believe the present supervisors want to do their duty, but know that some in past years have not always done their duty, as the tax books show. When property in the business section of Paducah, worth from $10,000 to $30,000 and $40,000 is found assessed for taxation at $5,000, $10,000 and such amounts, it is plain to anyone that someone has not done his duty. After the work of the present board is finished, we believe that it will be clear that it has done its duty.

The legislature, among the numerous other bills introduced, is to consider one making a severe penalty for carrying concealed weapons. This would be a good law—if it were only enforced. Any man with money or friends who is fined and sentenced to jail for carrying a pistol, can escape. Some of them are fined, take an appeal and nothing is ever heard of the case again. Very few laws of either existing or contemplated, are going to do much good if they are not enforced.

They have some strenuous automobiles in Louisville. One collided with a street car yesterday and instead of the street car company having to pay damages, the car was knocked off the track and put out of business, while the auto is good for considerable service yet. A little more of such treatment and street car motormen may become docile—but how about the arrogant automobilist?

Mr. Pontney Bigelow's reputation as a journalist has not been enhanced by his Panama "exposure." The government was so quick to come back at him and show the motive behind the publication, that his head is probably swimming yet. In addition, he has been summoned to go before a congressional committee and tell just how much he knows of what he wrote as facts.

The Commercial club is now doing some excellent work for Paducah, but it is of such a nature that it would be imprudent to give publicity to its plans at present. The public, however, would be surprised to learn of some of the large projects under advisement, and of the quiet but effective work that is being done by the secretary and members.

UNCLE SAM

May Try to Make Important Changes in Marriage Laws.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—No more May and December weddings. No more marrying foreign titles. No more elopements.

Uncle Sam is now asked to consider an amendment to the constitution of the United States that will provide for uniform marriages and divorces.

John Gibson Hale, an attorney of Chicago and son of a former member of congress from Missouri, is the author of the proposed amendment and he has requested the house judiciary committee to grant him a hearing.

Chairman Jenkins and several members of the committee have signified their willingness to listen to Mr. Hale's ideas.

The amendment offered by the Chicagoan is in substance that congress shall provide for a system of registration with the census department.

BEHIND THE BARS.

Mrs. Cassie Chadwick Begins Her 10-Year Sentence.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was taken to the Columbus penitentiary this morning. The trip from the jail to the depot was without incident. She did not suffer a nervous collapse but last night in jail was sleepless. She packed her effects and then summoned the jail attaches to say goodbye. She also bade farewell to the prisoners. Emil Hoover, her son, was the last person to leave her cell. He left at 2 o'clock this morning.

PURCHASING FOR CITY DEPARTMENTS

Ordinance Creating an Agency to Be Introduced Soon.

Mayor Yerger Today Notified Contractors About Some Had Payments.

BUTCHERS WANT PROTECTION.

An ordinance will in all probability be brought in by the council at an early meeting creating a purchasing agency department for the city. It will be the duty of this department to buy supplies that the different departments of the municipality needs at all times, and this will be done by advertising for bids in the official newspaper of the city. Heretofore often if anything has been needed in any of the offices or departments, a clerk would be sent out to buy it, and no price was asked. Sometimes the price was all right, and sometimes, no one can surmise, it has been exorbitant.

The agency will be composed of the mayor and the presidents of the two boards, and requisitions for any supplies will have to be made to the agency and come with the endorsement of the head of the department wanting the supplies.

"Things have been run too loosely," said a member of one of the boards today. "In one department, the other day, I found that when they bought, for instance, any soap, it was purchased by the bar instead of by the case, no one would do in his private business where he used as much as this department does. This is cited merely as an illustration. It is the case in nearly all matters."

"Now we intend that all supplies shall be bought in wholesale lots, thus giving the city a big saving in this particular, and giving every dealer an opportunity to bid to furnish such supplies."

"We do not want to create any new offices, as has been suggested by the creation of the office of inspector of weights and measures. We have too many officials now, so we think that the mayor and the two presidents of the boards will serve as this agency, for a time any way, thus saving any expense from that quarter. We believe it imperative that such an agency be established and the matter will come up at an early date."

The mayor today notified Thos. Bridges and Son, the contractor firm that has the contract for the street improvements on Kentucky avenue, that it must do something to put the walks along that street in a condition that they can be used. Since the rainy weather of the past few days the walks are in a very sloppy, bad condition and there has been much complaint from pedestrians. The contractor cannot build the walks until spring now, but will probably lay theinder foundation which will improve the conditions somewhat.

The butchers are very anxious to have the council order that every one selling meat, the butchers, grocers, hucksters, country men, and all, shall pay a license. They want the license made large enough, it is said, to shut out the hucksters and smaller grocers, thus benefiting their own business, and there is much comment on it in some quarters. The butchers have been holding meetings for the past few Sundays, and meet again Sunday.

There are no new developments in the city's suit against the East Tennessee Telephone Co. to oust it from the city, but the mayor is confident, he says, that the city will win it. He claims that the company's plea that it has a perpetual grant will not hold; that the supreme court has held where such pleadings have been made and a city comes in with a counter plan of eminent domain that the court has found for the municipalities; that no city or state can give a perpetual grant.

The other side claims they have the city on the run, and that the case must now be either compromised or fought out to an end in federal court, where it has been brought.

It is further understood that the indications are good for a compromise in the near future, but the details are not given out.

Making It Go.

He said he'd fixed the furnace so it would throw out heat and fect a all suggestions of troubles he might meet. For some had been declaring that soot had clogged the flue. But he—well, he knew better, and he would prove it too.

A goodly bunch of paper lie in the furnace dropped and then threw in some splinters. And wood that he had chopped: He packed the coal in neatly. Until there seemed enough; He set the paper blazing— And then there came a puff.

He tried all air devices, But still the furnace puffed; Then sadly he concluded: The flues and pipes were stuffed. He drenched the fire with water, While fearful he would choke, And when it was extinguished The house was filled with smoke.

The pipes he disconnected And worked at them till sore, And soon the soot lay bushels Was lying on the floor. Then from the flue came tumbling More soot at rapid pace, And it was nearly midnight Ere he had the pipes in place.

Once more he jammed in paper And splinters, wood and coal; Again a fire he started And saw flames upward roll. He limped up from the cellar, As black as blackest crow, But he had fixed the furnace, And he had made it go.

—Theodore H. Wolfe in Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Record Breaker.

Jones—That Miss Throwdown is certainly a record breaker. Smith—You bet. I luvited her over to hear my new photograph, and she upset the box of records and broke 'em. —Washington Star.

Defined.

Honorio G. Herriek of Lawrence, Mass., for many years sheriff of Essex county, took a lively interest in the schools of his home town. Shortly after Garfield's death Mr. Herriek visited one of the schools and made an address upon the life of the statesman. He asked:

"Now, can any one tell me what a statesman is?"

"A little hand went up, and a little girl replied:

"A statesman is a man who makes speeches."

"Hardly that," answered Mr. Herriek, who loved to tell this story. "For instance, I sometimes make speeches, and yet I am not a statesman."

The little hand again went up, and the answer came triumphantly:

"I know; a statesman is a man who makes a good speech." —Philadelphia Ledger.

A Cheat.

"A sculptor is by reason of his profession a model man," said the cynic, "but for the very same reason he is also the greatest cheat to deal with." "How do you make that out?" "Because he will chisel the very eyes out of his patrons' faces." —Baltimore American.

Interpreted.

"Father," asked the youth, "what is your understanding of the saying, 'The race is not always to the swift'?" "Traffically, my son," replied the wise father. "It means that in the race of life the fast men don't usually come out ahead." —Catholic Standard and Times.

Reason of It.

Gebhart—What, so hard at work just before Christmas?

Carsone—That's just why. My wife threatens to buy me some absurdly expensive Christmas present, so I'm making a little extra working overtime. —Chicago News.

Good Things.

"Surely," said the persistent solicitor, "you are willing to admit that life insurance is a good thing."

"Oh, yes," replied the wearied one, "in that respect it seems to be just like the policy holder." —Chicago Record-Herald.

RIVER NEWS

River Stages.

Calro—31.2, 0.7 fall.
Chattanooga—7.0, 0.6 fall.
Cincinnati—23.7, 2.8 fall.
Evansville—23.8, 0.6 fall.
Florence—7.3, 0.7 fall.
Johnsonville—13.5, 0.1 fall.
Louisville—9.0, 1.3 fall.
Mt. Carmel—11.0, 0.8 fall.

Pittsburg—3.5, 0.2 rise.
Davis Island Dam—5.9, 0.1 rise.
St. Louis—9.1, 0.7 fall.
Paducah—25.1, 0.4 fall.

The river fell 0.1 of a foot last night, the gauge showing 25.1 this morning.

Business is dull in local river circles.

The Dick Fowler left for Calro at 8 o'clock with a fairly good trip of passengers and freight.

The Joe Fowler was the Evansville packet today.

The Peters Lee en route to Memphis is due tomorrow.

The Rees Lee en route to Cincinnati was in at 10 o'clock last night.

The Huttoff leaves Nashville today and is due here Sunday.

The Kentucky arrived at 5 this morning and will leave Saturday at 6.

The Sprague passed up last night with a big tow of empties for Pittsburg.

The Margaret leaves today for the Tennessee for a tow of ties.

The Joe B. Williams is due to pass up on the way to Pittsburg Sunday.

The Nashville Banner says: While the gauge stood 14 1-2 feet, falling, at the Broad street river front this morning, the rain of today will have a tendency to change this order of things within the next 24 hours.

The stage of the river is said to be just right for traffic and this has been demonstrated by the demand that has just come from patrons of the Ryman line between Nashville and Paducah. The demand calls for a larger steamer than the Huttoff and this demand will be answered by the officers of the Ryman line Saturday, when the steamer Richardson will be put in this service and the Huttoff tied up for the present.

The river tonnage at Calro for the past year amounted to 3,143,516 tons, of which 576,724 tons are of boats the balance, 3,038,365 tons are of barges, in and out of port. In 1901 the total river tonnage at this port was 2,629,150 tons. Gain of 1905 over 1904 shows 472,173 tons. Four thousand one hundred and sixty-eight barges and 1,872 boats touched this port during the year as against 3,575 barges and 1,483 boats the year preceding. This shows a total increase of 962 boats and barges over the year 1904. —Calro Bulletin.

Harry McFarland, one of the principal engineers of the Lee Line and recently engineer of the steamer City of Cincinnati in the Louisville trade, dropped dead at his home in New Richmond Tuesday. He was employed last season on one of the Lee Line steamers between Memphis and Cincinnati, and in the early part of this season was transferred from the Memphis and Cincinnati boat to one of the Lee Line boats running in a local trade out of Memphis. He returned a few days ago from Memphis and was ill, but it was not supposed, however, that he was fatally ill. He was playing with his children when the end came. A widow and three children survive him.

The pilot house of the famous old towboat, Dick Fulton, commanded by Capt. Frederick Dippold for many years, stands on the river bank in front of his beautiful home at Seewickley, Pa. It affords a fine view of the Grand Ohio, a fine place to be to view the passing by of one of Pittsburg's great coal fleets. When a towboat passes the pilot house of the Dick Fulton, she salutes, which denotes that she is safe below Davis Island dam. The word is immediately phoned back to Pittsburg from Capt. Dippold's residence. Capt. Fred G. and Capt. John M. Dippold are two of the best known and most successful towboat men that leave Pittsburg. Capt. Fred Dippold is in command of the Tom Ites and his brother, Capt. John Dippold, is on the Raymond Horner. —Courier-Journal.

During the wind of Tuesday the Lucie Marnet, of the Marnet company, met with an accident which may lay her up for a few days. The boat was in one of the upper pools of the Great Kanawha river dropping out coal. The wind blew so hard that the boat was driven to the bank and had a hole torn in her hull. The crew set the emergency pumps to work. The tear was then filled up and the boat taken to the ways at Pt. Pleasant on her own steam.

Ward's Engineering company, of Charleston, has just completed a new steel hull twin screw towboat, which will be quite a departure from the average craft for towing. If it is to be used on the Ohio river or its tributaries. It is a light draft boat 150 ft. long and 28 feet wide, and its engines are located down in the hull.

Capt. Usher has been asked for an opinion on the complaints made about the overcrowding of show or theatrical boats that navigate the river and give exhibitions in the smaller towns. The correspondents complained that these boats frequently admitted as many as 1200 or 1600 people, and as there is only one exit, an accident would mean great loss of life. Capt. Usher said that his department had jurisdiction over vessels in course of navigation only. As the show boats do not exhibit while they are navigating, but when they are tied up, he did not see that his department could do anything. —Courier-Journal.

AFTER MORALES.

Fugitive President of San Domingo May Soon Be Caught.

Cape Haytian, Hayti, Jan. 12.—Advice from Monte Cristi, Santo Domingo, says that Dominican gunboat Independencia, which declared infamy of the fugitive president, Gen. Morales, cannot take any further part in the hostile operations owing to the fact that being without coal she cannot leave Monte Cristi. Morales, the advice said, was wounded recently in an encounter with troops of the temporary president, General Caeceres. A detachment of Caeceres' troops is on the track of Morales and it is said he probably will be captured.

IN THE COURTS

Circuit Court.

The suit of Mrs. Ida Stelabraker against the Paducah City Railway Co. for $2,000 damages for injuries received at Second and Broadway was decided this morning in favor of the defendant. She claimed that while trying to get off a car at Second and Broadway the car started suddenly and threw her down.

The case of Wilt Duncan against the Western Union Telegraph company was yesterday decided in favor of the defendant.

Duncan sued for $2,000 damages for alleged failure to deliver a telegram announcing his child's death.

In the case of J. H. Cheatham against H. P. Hawkins, a demurrer to the petition was filed.

New Trial Hearing Postponed.

County Judge H. T. Lightfoot has returned from Wickliffe after attending court yesterday. The case of Mrs. Lulu Warford against Dr. Dorris was to have come up again and a motion for a new trial argued, but the argument was postponed on account of the illness of the court. No date for hearing has been set.

Tax Case Postponed.

The injunction suit of John C. Garner against Sheriff Dave Reeves and the county of Marshall, to prevent the latter from collecting a road fund in addition to other taxes, was yesterday afternoon called by Circuit Judge W. M. Reed and postponed until the 17th day of the month.

Taken to Metropolis.

Bud Allen, colored, was arrested at Second and Broadway late yesterday afternoon by Patrolmen Hessian and Johnson and turned over to Marshal Wiant, of Metropolis, and taken to Illinois for trial for attempting to cut a white man at a mill near Metropolis sometime ago. Allen skipped out and was indicted only a few days ago.

Like Other Cases.

The case of Frank Slaughter against the N. C. and St. L. railroad is another instance of where the state and federal courts clash. The railroad wanted the case tried in federal court and the plaintiff wanted it tried in the state court. The latter sued for $10,000 for the loss of a leg. The special judge in circuit court, J. C. Flournoy, ordered the case transferred to federal court and Mr. Slaughter's attorneys appealed, resulting in the appellate court deciding that the case should have remained in circuit court and been tried.

Stole His Wardrobe.

Hardy Anderson, who has been boarding and rooming at the Hart house, reported to the police this morning the theft of an overcoat, suit of clothes and pair of shoes from his room last night. No clue was left but the police have a description of the articles stolen and will keep a lookout for them.

Harry Stark Case to Be Dropped.

It is understood that the Harry Stark bankruptcy case will be dropped. He was ruled two or three years ago to turn over to the bankruptcy court $10,000 alleged to be unaccounted for, and failed to do it. There was talk of sending him to jail for contempt of court, and he left the city. He has now returned and it was said today that nothing further would probably be done in the case.

County Court.

J. L. Chatham was this morning granted a peddler's license in the county.

LIVELY RUNAWAY.

One of Harry Anderson's hacks almost wrecked.

A hack belonging to Harry Anderson narrowly missed being smashed up last night in a runaway.

The horses started driverless at the depot and proceeded to the Palmer hotel. At Fifth and Broadway they ran into the side of the Palmer Transfer Co. "bus" and were turned aside. They ran several blocks more before they were stopped. One horse was slightly lamed by the accident, but the hack was not badly damaged.

LOCAL U. D. C.

Has Asked Assistance of Legislators in Behalf of Confederate Pension Bill.

The local chapter of the U. D. C. has sent petitions to the Paducah representatives at Frankfort, asking them to give their support to the bill, when it is introduced, to allow Confederate veterans who have families and homes the same sum to support them there that would be given for their support in the Confederate Home at Pewee Valley. In this way the veterans will be able to remain with their families.

The local chapter approves of this bill and wishes to secure its passage. It is presumed that the other U. D. C. chapters in the state will give it their endorsement also.

He Knew His Life's Value.

Robert Burns was once standing on a long pier on the water front of Edinburgh. A well known and wealthy merchant, walking by, stumbled and fell into the water. He could not swim and so sank. When he arose for the third time nobody dared to save him, but an old weather-beaten sailor, at the risk of his own life, ran up the pier, and, jumping in, rescued the man.

The gentleman had been worked over quite a while before he became conscious, and when he realized the situation he rewarded his rescuer with what in our money would amount to 25 cents. At this the crowd which had gathered, knowing his wealth, hooted and jeered. But Burns, who was standing by, quieted them and said:

"Surely the gentleman knows what his life is worth."

This is a corporation composed of retail druggists extending throughout the United States and is organized to sell cigars and tobacco products directly through its affiliated druggists without any intervention of middlemen, thus insuring the smoker of exceptional values at astonishingly low prices.

Texas Wants Patrick Pardoned.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 12.—Something over 100 petitions, each representing about 2,000 names, will be forwarded from Texas the early part of next week asking executive clemency in the case of Albert T. Patrick, sentenced to death in New York state for the murder of Millionaire Rice.

In this city the petition asking for executive clemency will measure several yards when completed.

Other towns are interesting themselves. Patrick was raised here in Austin.

Liberal Library Appropriation.

The library trustees are elated over the announcement that the council will give $10,000 to the library this year. Last year they were unable to do as much as they desired on account of lack of funds, but hope this year to have a plenty for their needs. The fixed expenses of the library are nearly $300 a month, salaries being $125, lights $40, coal $25 and incidentals $100.

I. C. Stock Went Up.

The following incident is related of Nat Goodwin, the actor. Not long ago Goodwin was standing on the corner of Broadway and Thirty-fourth street, where three car lines converge, when a seedy-looking individual, apparently from the country, approached him questioninglly:

"I want to go to the Brooklyn Bridge," he said, looking in perplexity at the cars rushing in six different directions.

"Very well," said Goodwin, severely, "you can go this time, but never ask me again."—Harper's Weekly.

Board of Works Anxious to Have City Plant Shade Trees Along the Streets

Secretary Sanders Fowler of the board of public works is anxious to secure the establishment of a city department of forestry to take care of the shade trees along the streets and to plant new ones along the newly constructed streets. He made a recommendation to the last council that such a department be established, and asked for an appropriation of $50 with which to purchase trees to plant along Broadway from Seventh to Ninth streets, but the matter was tabled for some reason. He will bring the matter before the new council and hopes for favorable action. He thinks that if the city should plant shade trees along the new streets, Broadway, Third and Kentucky avenue and Jefferson, it can be done at little expense. The property owners would be asked to water them and the board of public works could have them attended to where there are vacant lots or the residents fail to look after them.

ANOTHER FELONY

TWO SETS OF HAINES STOLEN BY CHARLES LEE IDENTIFIED.

There Was Little Business Today in Judge D. L. Sanders' Police Court.

Charles Lee, colored, suspected of having been in the wholesale harness stealing business, was held over this morning on another felony warrant, this making the second warrant on which he has been held.

Lee was tried and convicted of selling harness stolen from H. Walenstein and this morning harness he had sold to a man named White was identified by Mr. Lee Bolton and Mr. Mel Byrd. There is still another set of harness unidentified. Lee did not have a lawyer and refused to testify. His case required but a few minutes. White being the only witness appearing against him, stating that Lee had sold him the harness for $2 alleging he had bought it and was "making a little off of the deal."

Two warrants against John Armstrong, colored, for maliciously cutting Pete Anderson and for carrying a concealed weapon, were continued until Monday on account of the absence of prosecuting witnesses.

A breach of the peace case against John Andrews was dismissed.

MIDWINTER MEETING.

Progressing For an Interesting Time.

Progressing satisfactory assurance of a large and representative attendance for the midwinter meeting of the Kentucky Press Association, which is to be held in Frankfort on January 23. The capital city was chosen for the reason that there will be several bills of vital interest to the members of the association pending before the general assembly at the time.

The meeting in Frankfort will be devoted to matters of business during the day and to entertainment at night. For the evening two addresses are scheduled—one by Mr. Arthur Y. Ford, of Louisville, and the other by Col. William Lightfoot Visseher, the famous humorous and pathetic writer, "who left Kentucky many years ago and is now a resident of Chicago. During the day several interesting papers will be read, but the chief topics for discussion will be the bills pending before the legislature.

DR. OSLER

Is Brought Face to Face With Exception to His Rule.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Over a hundred persons, including prominent medical practitioners in the United States, Dr. William Osler, of Oxford University, England, and officers of the army and navy attended a testimonial dinner last night in honor of the eighty-third birthday of Dr. Robert Fletcher, chief compiler and collector of medical and scientific literature of the surgeon general's office of the army.

Dr. C. T. Vaughan, of the public health and marine service, in his speech said that no greater refutation could be given to the Osler theory that the best work of man's life had been done at 40 than the subject in whose honor the assemblage was gathered. Osler quickly replied that Fletcher was an exception to the rule.

TWO MORE CADETS

Are Believed to Have Been Convicted of Hazing.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 12.—There is good reason for belief that Midshipmen Foster of New Albany, Ind., and Marzoni, of Pensacola, Fla., have been found guilty of hazing. Both midshipmen belong to the first class and would have graduated February 12. They are regarded as good students in general, and each had a specialty. Foster devised an improvement in the form of the war nose used on torpedoes, and Marzoni is considered the best linguist in the class.

LIBRARY BOARD

WILL HOLD ITS ANNUAL MEETING MONDAY EVENING.

Officers Are to Be Elected, and No Changes Are Now Anticipated.

The annual meeting of the Carnegie public library board will be held Monday evening, and officers will be elected for the year. No changes are anticipated. The members of the board are Mrs. Louis Rieke, Mrs. A. R. Meyers, and Messrs. E. W. Hagley, Charles Weille, George C. Wallace and Harry Savage, with Mayor D. A. Yelver an ex-officio member.

The library is doing well, and is growing rapidly in public favor. The books are well kept, the lists always up-to-date, and the demand for them is most gratifying to the public-spirited members of the board who have done so much to make the library a success.

The librarian, Miss Haynam, and assistant, Miss Corbett, are elected for indefinite terms, and the positions are practically permanent, hence there will be no one to elect Monday except president, treasurer and other board officers.

PNEUMONIA WEATHER.

Every Person Should Be Very Careful in Exposing Him or Herself.

This is good pneumonia weather, as some of the doctors express it, and everyone should be very careful about exposing himself or herself. Quite a number of cases are reported in the city and county, and there were two deaths in the city from it yesterday, and three deaths from it in one family in the county.

There are several cases reported in the Woodville section, and those either in town or county, who have occasion to go out and encounter the damp, sloppy weather, cannot be too careful.

Children's Suits and Overcoats

The Most Remarkable of January Sales

Ever Conducted by This Store or in This Community

REDUCTION sales of one sort or another are usual at this season of the year. It is expected that merchants will use every legitimate means to reduce their stocks, and turn their merchandise into money, before inventory, and to avoid the penalties and losses of carrying goods over from one season to another. Cut prices, special sales, and discounts from regular values, abound on all sides; but lest you conclude that this is the ordinary January Clearance---a mere means of unloading suits and overcoats, getting our money back, or making ourselves whole on the investment, we wish to set out clearly the distinguishing features of this price-reducing campaign. We have made the prices so low, reductions so sharp and decisive as to leave no question in the mind of anyone who calls here that this is an occasion unlike anything they have seen or known heretofore. There can be no doubt that we mean business, that we are determined to clear this store of winter wearables regardless of first cost of the goods or their actual worth in the market at this time. First of all we believe strong inducements are necessary to stir people into activity and make this sale a sensational success. We believe that those who have thus far gone without something they would like to have are entitled to a bargain.

Where conditions of economy or uses for the money in other directions have prevented a man's buying a needed article, we believe we shall have to remove the original difficulty---that of price---if we are to serve him.

Again, we shall not be content with selling only those who have postponed their buying---there are not enough of them. We have got to make the figures so low, make the values so imperative, that those who have already supplied themselves early in the season will be forced to add to their purchases and lay in an extra outfit. Forced, we say, because they can't afford to let the chance slip---compelled by the sheer strength of the values and the knowledge that they can't hope to have such an opportunity again.

The Sale Begins Saturday Morning, January 13

and will continue till every article of this season's stock is placed in some one's hands, at some price---however short that price may fall of the original cost.

MANY NEW HOUSES TO BE BUILT IN 1906

Architects are Already Getting — All Very Busy.

There Are Vacant Houses But Two
New Ones Are to Be Found for Every Old Vacant One.

BOOM STARTS IN THE SPRING

Architect A. L. Lassiter is working on plans for a $15,000 school house to be erected at Murray, by that city. It will be a two-story, 12 room, brick structure, and bids will be received on it about February 15. Mr. Lassiter will receive bids Friday on a residence Mrs. Hannah F. Levy will erect on North Eighth street back of Mrs. James Buckner. It will be a two-story, pressed brick house to cost about $5,000.

Mr. Lassiter is also drawing plans for a one-story building DuBois & Kolb will erect adjoining the Empire flats on Broadway to be occupied by Katterjohn and Dalby. Work will start on it Monday.

He also engaged on plans for a $3,000 residence to be built by Geo. A. Gardner on the Garrison creek farm.

All of the architects are very busy for this season of the year which foretells a prosperous spring for the building trades. There were more of the better grade houses—the two-story bricks and frame residences erected in 1905 than ever before, and 1906, from present indications, will surpass 1905.

There are a good many of vacant houses around the city but for each vacant house two new ones that are occupied can be found. This is evidence of the growth of the city the past year.

RABBITS AND SQUIRRELS.

May Be Killed Except Between Sept.
15, and Nov. 15.

In reply to numerous questions as to whether it is lawful to kill squirrels and rabbits in Kentucky at this season of the year, a Kentucky firm which deals in sporting goods has made the following statement:

"We have had several reports, and understand that other dealers have had the same, from hunters who claim that they have been threatened with arrest for shooting rabbits and squirrels. One dealer states that he has been notified to discontinue selling rabbits that have been shot. This would indicate that there is a misunderstanding regarding the law, and we believe it would be of interest to publish the game law pertaining to the killing of rabbits and squirrels, which is as follows:

"Section 1954. 'No person shall kill or pursue with such intent, or have in his possession when so killed, any rabbit or squirrel between the 15th day of September and the 15th day of November in each year; provided anyone may catch rabbits with dogs or in snares.'

"It will be seen from this that it is lawful to kill rabbits and squirrels at any time during the year except from September 15th to November 15th. The object of prohibiting the shooting between September 15 and November 15 is to prevent persons who go rabbit hunting from violating the law by shooting quail."

Brief Salutory.

A Kansas paper changed hands last week, having been purchased by its previous owner, Guy Stoddard. Instead of penning a long salutatory Editor Stoddard printed the following: "We wanted to buy the 'Record,' Mr. Campbell wanted to sell, and here we are."

Theatrical Notes

A Competent Cast for "The Clansman."

The day has long since past when a theatrical company consisting of two or three competent actors and a majority of incompetent stunts could go on tour and meet with success. Realizing the importance of this fact, Mr. George H. Brennan, manager of the Southern Amusement company, has taken unusual pains in selecting a company to present "The Clansman." Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s remarkable play of the south. Most of the months during the summer was spent in interviewing applicants as well as in sending for and looking into the qualifications of hundreds of actors. After most careful consideration the cast was completed. When rehearsals began it was found necessary to make several changes although all of the actors originally selected were of the highest standing. It was found that those better suited to the roles could be secured and the changes were made. For some of the parts it was necessary to rehearse several people before the required perfection was found. The company as finally completed consists of the following well-known and competent actors: Franklin Ritchie, Mabel Brownell, Maude Durand, Wm. H. Tooker, Claire McDowell, Violet McCreau, John H. Cooke, R. G. Thomas, Charles Avery, James H. Martin, Charles Malles, Jas. J. Gardner and others.

"The Clansman" will be presented at The Kentucky tonight.

Historic Gowns.

Clever comedians. In "San Toy" wear valuable gowns.

Fred W. Huntley as "Sing High," and W. L. Romaine as the emperor in the beautiful Daily Theatre production of "San Toy," which will be seen Saturday afternoon and evening wear the most expensive garments ever worn by comedians on the stage.

The gowns were made in China for a mandarin of note and influence. But the gentleman falling into disfavor with the dowager empress was summarily beheaded and his personal effects scattered, according to Chinese customs, throughout the empire.

The gowns in time fell into the hands of the late Augustin Daly's agents, who brought them to London.

From thence they found their way to New York, where they have since been worn by Messrs. Huntley and Romaine in the "San Toy" production.

other curious emblems of China. All the garments worn in the "San Toy" production were imported from China, the duty alone when brought to this country cost thousands of dollars, and are insured for fifteen thousand dollars.

9,212 Homicides in 1905.

Unofficial statistics gathered by the Chicago Tribune from 1905 show that there were 9,212 homicides committed in the United States during the year, an increase of $40 over 1904. The ratio is 115 per million, while in Germany the annual average ratio of homicides to population is 13 per million, 19 per million in France and 27 per million in the United Kingdom. Ratably, therefore, murder and manslaughter are four times as frequent in this country as in England, Scotland and Wales, and nine times as frequent as in Germany. The legal executions in this country numbered 133 last year, which compared to a total of 8,212 homicides is an almost insignificant proportion.

RAILWAY NEWS

THE PAST YEAR WAS ONE OF — UNEQUALLED EARNINGS.

Railroads Buy Enormous Amount of Equipment to Handle the Growing Business.

While 1905 was a year of unequalled earnings, it was also a year of tremendous debt-making by railroads. Forty-nine railway companies listed bond issues aggregating $538,584,000, the bulk of this, as shown by the Financial Chronicle, coming from twelve leading systems, chiefly on account of improvements and additions. Of new securities, the Pennsylvania Railroad company issued $72,500,000, besides $15,000,000 by the Pennsylvania company, $9,000,000 by the P. C. C. & St. L., and $4,000,000 by the Long Island railroad, all in the Pennsylvania system; New York Central, $20,000,000 and its Lake Shore $10,000,000; Santa Fe $22,000,000. Iron Mountain (Missouri Pacific) $29,500,000, Union Pacific $17,000,000, Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal $47,500,000, Western Maryland (Wabash) $14,434,000, Rock Island system $10,000,000, Atlantic Coast Line $35,000,000.

In the current issue of the Railway Age the statistics of the American railways in the matter of orders for new equipment are given. The impressive totals are conclusive evidence that the railroads are making every effort to take care of the increasing business that is pouring in upon them from all sections of the country. In the endeavor of the roads to meet the conditions which have been chronic for years is the shortage of rolling stock and motive power several roads have far exceeded the orders of previous years for new cars, coaches and locomotives as the table of orders for the past five years will show.

The totals for 1905, exclusive of interurban equipment, in comparison with those of each of the four years preceding—embracing the five years for which these statistics have been compiled—are as follows. Locomotives—1901, 4,340; 1902, 4,665; 1903, 3,283; 1904, 2,538; 1905, 6,265. Passenger cars—1901, 2,879; 1902, 2,459; 1903, 2,310; 1904, 2,213; 1905, 3,289. Freight cars—1901, 193,439; 1902, 195,248; 1903, 198,936; 1904, 126,561; 1905, 311,315.

It is to be borne in mind that the equipment shown is for equipment ordered during the year, and not equipment delivered. The aggregate capacity of the car and locomotive plants and the railway shops which build new equipment, is not sufficient to produce in the year the large results represented in the footings, and it is more than probable that the orders for the past year will carry the builders for into 1906. It is not probable that from present conditions the orders for 1906 will be up to those of 1905.

A NEW LEAGUE

Has Organized For Next Season and Paid Its Money.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 12.—The new board of arbitration of the National Association of Professional Baseball League held its first session and decided about twenty cases left over by the old board. Not all of the unfinished business was cleared up, and another meeting will be held at New York in February to complete the work. The principal case decided was the awarding of Player De Armond to the Little Rock Southern League club.

The Kansas State League, consisting of eight clubs, paid Secretary Ferrell $1,000 for protection under the national agreement. The following cities are in the new organization: Parsons, Iola, Pittsburg, Coffeyville, Independence, Emporia, Chanute and Fort Scott. The first three towns were formerly in the Missouri Valley league. F. Hero, Jr., of Parsons, Kans., is the new president of the league.

There has been this year a modest revival of the best sugar industry in Ontario, and farmers have raised more beets than the factories can take care of. The present crop is taken from about 15,000 acres and is valued at $608,000.

Is Reducing Weight.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Secretary Taft has been for several weeks past endeavoring systematically to reduce his weight, and was able today to announce a measurable degree of success.

When he began the treatment, as the result of a rather sedentary life in the Philippines and lack of exercise here, he weighed 294 3-4 pounds.

Today he weighed 294 3-8 pounds, a reduction attained principally through a careful diet.

TWO DAYS SAVED IN MAIL SCHEDULE

Fast Time Between New York and San Francisco.

Benefits Will Be Felt In Kentucky as Well as In Other Sections of the Country.

TIME IS EIGHTY-ONE HOURS.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The change which took place last Sunday in the overland schedule between New York and San Francisco, via Omaha and Ogden, whereby twenty-four hours are cut off of the running time of the train leaving New York at 3:15 a. m. and Chicago at 3 a. m., is unparalleled in the history of the railway mail service. This saving of a day each way is all done west of the Mississippi river, and thus Paducah and other Kentucky business men will profit by it as well as merchants in the metropolis of the Atlantic and Pacific coast and intervening cities.

Frequently there have been changes in mail schedules that have effected a saving of one business day for the round trip between the two coasts, but the cutting off of two days is really marvelous. The General Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service in his 1888 report said: "In connection with the transcontinental service it will appear clear that no further improvement is possible with the facilities at the command of the department, and when it is considered that the distance covered is over 3,340 miles, it does not appear that any further improvement could be expected."

In the year that was written the time in transit of mail between New York and San Francisco was 128 hours, and forty-five minutes, that is, five days, eight hours and fifteen minutes. Mail leaving New York at 9 a. m. reached San Francisco at 7:15 a. m. the seventh day. In the following spring, however, the time was reduced to 118 hours and forty-five minutes, or four days, twenty-two hours and forty-five minutes, mail leaving New York at 9 p. m. reaching San Francisco at 7:15 p. m. the sixth day. In the fall of the same year the time was still further reduced to 108 hours and forty-five minutes.

This is one of the instances where, by a saving of one business day was effected by a reduction of ten hours in the running time. In January, 1899, the schedule was again lowered to ninety-two hours, being three days and twenty hours in transit, leaving New York at 9:15 p. m. and reaching San Francisco at 5:15 p. m. the fifth day. This brings us up to the last change which reduces the time to eighty-one hours and forty-three minutes, nearly 40 per cent. less than was considered in 1888 the fastest schedule that could be made, and ten hours and fifteen minutes faster than the fastest train heretofore in operation between the same points.

Fewer Marriages in Colorado.

The Colorado Herald says: "It begins to look as if something must be done to stimulate the demand for marriage licenses in this country. For the last four years the number issued has been less each succeeding year. In 1905 there were 121, which was 7 short of the number issued the preceding year, 23 less than 1903 and 63 less than 1902."

Deaths in Murray.

Twenty-nine deaths occurred in Murray in 1905. Nine were children and nine colored people. Of the grown people nine were females. These figures are given by the city clerk.—Murray Ledger.

7,000 Legally Recognized Intoxicants Something About the Author.

of My Old Kentucky Home

Washington, Jan. 12.—When you take your customary "nip" remember that there are more than seven thousand legally recognized intoxicants and that you can't go the limit.

These intoxicants come from every country under the sun, and the importations of alcoholic liquors into the United States this year will exceed sixteen million dollars. Americans pay out this immense sum for all kinds of concoctions and there can be no doubt after an examination of the records that the United States handles more kinds of intoxicating liquors than does any nation on the face of the globe. The fluid reaches here in all kinds of bottles and packages, and even in skins, spoken of in the Bible, but the gentle glass and casks have about driven the goat and sheepskin out of the market. The wet goods of Judea and its neighboring territory are Jerusalem wine, brandy, honey wine, and Passover wine, and sumpters give it as their opinion that it is all of a poor quality. The Jerusalem wine is thick, muddy and has a flavor suggestive of Tokay and Muscatel.

Vodka comes in great quantities from Russia but about the same kind of drink can be "enjoyed" by drinking the deadly spirits used in alcohol lamps. It may suit the Muscovite for the dead of winter, but in a climate like ours it will never become popular. Vodka is about in the same class as some of the wet goods imported from Mexico—pulque and mescal. The former is a sweetish-sour beer and is made from a cactus, and is anything but pleasant to the taste. Mescal is distilled from the pulque and is a rank and corrosive liquor.

Intoxicants that are horrible to both nostril and palate are imported from Central and South Africa. Casasha, or white cane rum, is several degrees more dangerous than anything ever produced in Bladenburg or Jersey. In the interior of Porto Rico, Jamaica and Brazil, it is cheap and plentiful as mountain dew in the mountains of Georgia and North Carolina.

An immense array of curious stimulants comes from the Far East—China, Japan and Java. The orientals never have learned to make effervescent beverages, but outside of this they know as much about fermenting and distilling as the Americans. In some respects they have gone further and utilized almost every vegetable from which a fluid can be produced. A parallel would exist if we made whisky from rice, buckwheat and oats, and wine from watermelons, cantaloupes and pumpkins. The government classes these eastern liquors into "wines, strong liquors and cordials." None are very bad to taste and yet none are exceedingly attractive—just about on an average with the fluid sold over Americans.

From European countries comes an inexhaustible stream of odd and strange drinks. It is a known fact among government experts that a large number of these imports are imitations, Hamburg and Bremen manufacturers being adepts in adulterating and imitating.

The Latin American countries send us some charming drinks, but in most cases they are regarded as a trifle too sweet for the masculine taste—lacking a get-full-quick foundation so much sought after by men who wet their whistles at the bar counters. There is not enough lightening in these splendidly-flavored drinks. For women and invalids they are all right, but for the rounder, no.

Scandinavians keep alive the love and pleasure of home by drinking red caraway whisky, Norwegian beer, Danish corn whisky and Swedish punch. The first named is pungent and penetrating and does its work in fast mail time. The beer is good, but the Danish corn whisky reeks with fusil oil and emits a sickening vapor. The Swedish punch is a sweet and odorous mixture and could be adopted by the White Ribbon wearers.

At Fulbourn, England, the poor receive six-pence each for regular church attendance.

DRUGGISTS

DuBois, Kolb & Co.'s former stand,
412-414 BROADWAY

The movement put on foot by the Louisville Commercial club to have a statue of Stephen Collins Foster unveiled in Louisville on the second day of "Home Coming Week," June 14, has awakened a deep interest in the history of this prolific song and ballad writer, says the Herald.

Foster was a musical prodigy. In his boyhood he evinced a strange fondness for music, and it was about the only thing that interested him in later years. He was a dreamy, sensitive chap, as gentle as a girl, and at Towanda, where he first went to school, he was considered the most modest boy in the place. It was while studying there that his first musical composition was published. He was barely 14 years old at the time, and for the "Toga Waltz" he esteemed himself highly paid when the publisher sent him 25 of the printed copies. Unhappily, none of these can now be found.

For a time he attended school at Athens, O., and later completed his education at Jefferson college, Canonsburg, Pa., where he was a classmate of the late James G. Blaine. From college he went to Cincinnati, where he secured a position as clerk. He had considerable business capacity, a strange quality in such an eccentric musical genius, but after business hours he indulged his gift more as an amusement than anything else.

His first song appeared in 1842, entitled, "Open Thy Lattice, Love," when he was 16. He submitted it to a number of publishers before it was finally accepted by a Baltimore concern. Encouraged by this, he went to work on another song, and not many months later "The Old Folks At Home" appeared.

When it is remembered that Foster was only a boy when this queen of melodies was written, the beauty of the composition is all the more remarkable. The theme of the song was a familiar one to him, because of his grandfather's love of the south and his fervid description of his peaceful, happy life there. His grandfather was a wanderer, doomed never to return to the land of his youth.

For a considerable time the "Old Folks At Home" found little favor with the public, but finally Thomas McNally placed it upon the minstrel stage, paying Foster $500 for the privilage.

In 1859 Foster wrote the song which always opens the cockles of the Kentuckian's heart, no matter where he hears it. In that year Foster, whose health was none too robust, went to Hardstown, Ky., in search of rest. This visit, he afterwards said, was the pleasantest period of his life, and on his return to New York, where he was then making his home, he composed the song called "My Old Kentucky Home." This composition was intended as a tribute that will endure as long as Kentucky can produce a single voice capable of humming its melodious notes.

The house from which Foster derived the thoughts embodied in "My Old Kentucky Home" still stands. It is known as "Federal Hill," and for almost a century has been owned by the Rowan family. Judge Rowan was a congressman, noted senator and learned jurist.

Surrounded by all that was beautiful, it was easy for the man who had given expression to so many soul stirring melodies to compose his tribute to the mansion of the bluegrass. It is doubtless possible that Foster wrote the three verses of "My Old Kentucky Home" in quite as many days, and gave a fitting musical expression to the words employed as rapidly as his pen dropped the lines.

He was inspired alike by the beautiful sunshine of the mornings and the yellow moonlight of the nights that fell upon "Federal Hill," by the waving golden grain, the hush of the corn, the negroes in the field, the lazy little darters in the cabins, and finally by the warblings of the mocking bird, the thrush's mellow song and the life-like notes of the Kentucky Cardinal, given fame by James Lane Allen.

While "My Old Kentucky Home" is an enduring moanment to the memory of Foster, it is certainly a fitting thing for the school children of Kentucky to raise a fund for the erection of a memorial in bronze.

The first of the contributions from the school children were raised in Louisville last Wednesday, January 10, about the same time the school children out in the state began to offer their nickels and dimes to this worthy cause.

Kentucky Girl Gets Good Place.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Miss Katherine Todd, of Shelbyville, will secure an appointment to a position in the internal revenue department in a short time. Miss Todd was in the bureau of engraving and printing when her health broke down and she was compelled to spend a year in Kentucky.

Representative Gilbert introduced Miss Todd to the President, who took a personal interest in the case because the applicant is a daughter of Capt. Thomas Todd, a prominent Shelby republican, a great-granddaughter of Gov. Isaac Shelby and a great-great-granddaughter of Chas.

INTERESTING FACTS.

For Nearly Every Man, Woman Or Child.

A short time ago we published an article recommending to our readers the new discovery for the cure of Dyspepsia, called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the claim then made regarding the wonderful curative properties of the remedy have been abundantly sustained by the facts. People who were cautious about trying new remedies advertised in the newspapers and were finally induced to give Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a trial were surprised and delighted at the results. In many cases a single package costing but 50 cents at any drug store made a complete cure and in every instance the most beneficial results were reported. From a hundred or more received we have space to publish only a few of the latest but assure our readers we receive so many commendatory letters that we shall publish each week a fresh list of genuine, unsolicited testimonials and never publish the same one twice.

From James Yemmelser, La-Crosse, Wis.: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are doing me more good than anything I ever tried and I was so pleased at results that I gave away several boxes to my friends who have also had the same benefits.

From Jacob Anthony, Portmurray, New Jersey: I have taken Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets with the best results. I had Dyspepsia for six years, and had taken a great deal of medicine, but the Tablets seem to take right a hold and I feel good. I am a farmer and lime burner and I heartily recommend to everyone who has any trouble with his stomach to use these Tablets.

From Mrs. M. K. West, Preston, Minn.: I have received surprisingly good effects from using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I gave one-half of my last box to a friend who also suffered from indigestion and she had the same good results.

From Mrs. Agnes K. Ralston, Cadillac, Mich.: I have been taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I am very much better, and feel very grateful for the great benefit I have received in so short a time.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a certain cure for all forms of indigestion. They are not claimed to be a cure-all, but are prepared for stomach troubles only, and physicians and druggists everywhere recommend them to all persons suffering from Nervous Dyspepsia, sour or acid stomach, heartburn, bloating or wind on stomach and similar disorders.

Paducahans Wherever They Go are Always Proud of Their Native Town

It is a true saying that the more a Paducahan sees of the world and the more people he meets the better satisfied is he with his native city, and its people. There is a hospitality and cordiality, or something indescribable that endears the town and its people to a native-born citizen.

As evidence of this, writing to the Sun on other matters from Frankfort, Senator Wheeler Campbell says with reference to the efforts being made to locate the Methodist college here:

"While I am proud of my native city, my pride in her progress, her thrift, the rapidity of her development doesn't blind me to her needs, chief among which is a permanent, substantial institution of learning. Our West Kentucky boys are not educated. In fact, I am not well educated myself, but the influence and advantages of a thorough education are more deeply impressed upon me every day.

"We want our people to acquire a real taste for reading good books. To learn to love the refined influence of scholarship.

"The more I see of the rest of Kentucky the prouder I am to come from the western part of the state, for while we may have no blue grass pastures or splendid stock farms, and while life may not be as elegant and easy, I tell you the Purchase is settled by a people richer in all the essential principles of good citizenship than the blue grass.

"Honesty in politics, regard for the rights of others, sturdy self-reliance and independence of character are the crowning characteristics of our people. God bless them. I am proud of them and glad to know that I am trusted by them to do their will as best I can. Command me always in the name of Paducah and her needs."

Mayor Yeiser is Very Anxious to Buy a Site for a Public Park for Paducah

Mayor Yeiser is very much in favor of something being done soon with reference to securing some sites or site for a public park for the city. He thinks it should be done this year as the value of property is increasing at a surprising rate each year.

The mayor is in favor of buying a site on time and paying for it each year. He advances the idea that a splendid site can be secured on ten years' time and if paid for in this way it would not be felt. He would like very much to secure Wallace park, if the traction company would sell it, which he does not think, however, is probable. But it would make an ideal park. Then, he thinks the old Trimble place on the Broadway road would make a pretty park. It is now owned by the J. R. Smith estate, and probably could be secured.

A few years ago the mayor appointed a park committee which looked at all of the available sites around Paducah and made some recommendations but as the city had no way to pay for anything of the sort nothing was done. But the plan for a park will most probably receive some consideration, and something towards getting one done, this year.

Danville, Ky., Jan. 12.—A unique organization has been perfected at Perryville, this county. The only qualifications of membership are that the members must have been married more than 50 years. So far, there are only ten members, as follows: Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Guthrie, the Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Hann. All of these families live in Perryville, but others who live in the

They are said to have been married longer than any other couple in the state of Kentucky. They celebrated their 66th marriage anniversary some days ago, at which time the organization was suggested and later perfected.

Etheridge went to Golconda, gave himself up and was released prior to a preliminary trial, which occurs today.—Metropolis Herald.

STEAMBOAT CHANGES.

New Route to Run Into Evansville in a Short Time.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 12.—Official information is given out that the Louisville and Evansville Packet Co. will put the steamer Tarascon in the former run made by the John W. Thomas between Cannelton and Evansville. The change will be made the first of February. The Morning Star will take the place of the Tarascon in the Louisville and Evansville trade.

Dick Ballard is captain of the Tell City during the illness of Capt. Ryan. It is expected that Captain Anderson, who was on the Thomas, will have charge of the Tarascon when she is put in the Cannelton trade. Captain Zoll will go on the Tell City and Captain Ryan will be on the Morning Star.

Rev. Carlisle P. B. Martin, L. L. D.
Of Waverly, Texas, writes: "On a morning, when first arising, I often find a troublesome collection of phlegm which produces a cough and is very hard to dislodge; but a small quantity of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will at once dislodge it, and the trouble is over. I know of no medicine that is equal to it, and it is so pleasant to take. I can most cordially recommend it to all persons needing a medicine for throat or lung trouble." Sold by Alvey & List.

MRS. M. A. RUTHERFORD DEAD

Was Mother of a Well Known Traveling Salesman.

Many friends here of Mr. R. B. Rutherford, a well known traveling man, who often comes to Paducah, will regret to learn of the death of his mother, Mrs. Martha A. Rutherford, at Owensboro.

The Owensboro Messenger says: "Mrs. Rutherford was born in Russellville in 1835, the daughter of John C. Miller. She lived in Russellville until her marriage in 1858 to C. W. McCulloch, the law partner of John T. Coffey, of Hopkinsville. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Missouri, where Mr. McCulloch organized a company of home guards in the confederate service. Towards the close of the war he was captured by the Kansas Jay Hawks, and upon his refusal to take the oath of allegiance to the United States, was put to death. His widow returned to her former home at Russellville. In 1870 she was married to Spencer F. Rutherford, a native of Logan county. She was again left a widow in 1875.

Mrs. Rutherford is survived by four children, all of whom live in Owensboro. They are J. W. McCulloch, Spencer F. Rutherford, Rush B. Rutherford and Mrs. John Lyne.

HOCH'S RECORD

Endangered By a Mysterious Man at Owensboro.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 12.—Hoch's record is in danger, so far as rapidity of acquiring wives is concerned. Fred Carl, alias Carl Burkhardt, has acquired three wives in less than a year, according to the statement of two women who claim that they are on the list of wives. Both of the women are now in Owensboro and have taken out a warrant against their joint husband charging him with bigamy. Carrie Truman says that she was married to Carl in October, 1905, at her home on Hall street the Rev. William Smith performing the ceremony. Annie Weimer, of Tell City, Ind., who came to Owensboro Tuesday, says that she was married to him a short time before that, and both women claim that they have positive evidence that he has married again since October. Carl paid attentions to the Truman girl for six months or so before they were married, as she now believes making trips from his home in Tell City to "come accounting" to Owensboro.

No one in Owensboro seems to know much about Carl. No one knows positively whether Carl is his first name or his last name, or that it is his name at all, but he has used it both as a Christian name and as a family name. Wife No. 2 is supposed to be Mrs. Carl while the Tell City woman was led to believe that she was Mrs. Burkhardt.

About Caleb Powers.
Elbert Hubbard in the January Phillipsine says:

In the jail at Newport, Ky., is Caleb Powers, indicted for complicity in the murder of Gov. Goebel. Powers was a school teacher, then he became superintendent of schools in the district where he lived. He has been tried twice, and is now awaiting a third trial. The evidence has never proved him guilty; even his worst enemies admit that his guilt is a mere matter of inference; that is to say, "If he didn't do it, who did?"

No man in America has ever been found guilty and given the maximum sentence on a third trial. Proof too flimsy to convict and carry the man to the scaffold on two trials cannot be reinforced with prejudice on the third—Caleb Powers will go free.

But how about the six years he has lain in jail, and the fortune he has spent to free himself? Will the state give back to this man what it has robbed him of?

On your life, it will not—that is where we go and wrong by the statute, and with the machinery of justice grind men, at times, to powder. Gibbon says that in Justinian's time, say the year 500 A. D., the Roman law had become so bulky and unwieldy that no fortune could buy the books in which it was contained, and moreover, no intellect could digest them. Also, that in the hands of the sordid, skillful and unscrupulous men, the machinery of justice could be, and often was, made a juggernaut of injustice and revenge.

We need a Justinian to revise our legal code.

Caleb Powers is an "Immortal," a booklover and a man who improves his time, in jail or out. In these six years, under the very shadow of the gallows, he has kept up hope, preserved good cheer, and maintained his health. A right valiant, brave and gracious soul is Caleb, who lives his life, even in jail, and leaves the protesting and flinging of bitter epithets to those outside, who, with fine unconscious irony, think they are free.

Those who have followed the Powers case carefully are now of the opinion that Caleb is a political scapegoat, and a martyr to the complications and refinements of the law. Even his enemies now want to let him go, but, as one of them said to me, "We wish we could set him free, but can't do it legally—see!"

"BLUE MAN" DEAD.

No One Had Ever Seen Inside His Store.

Columbia, Mo., Jan. 12.—James F. French, a bachelor, of Ashland, Boone county, died here today of heart failure. He was 65 years old. In appearance and in manner he was probably the most peculiar man that ever lived in this county. His skin and hair were as blue as indigo, the result of an overdose of mercury taken over twenty years ago.

For twenty years he conducted a general merchandise store at Ashland but for ten years no man has entered it or seen the inside of it. What he had in it no one knew, yet seldom did the proprietor fail to provide any customer with what he asked for.

The store was always locked, and customers would hunt Blue French up when they desired an article. He would go into the store at the rear and emerge with the article. He absolutely refused to sell to some people, and would never sell the last piece of goods. He would have big sales of certain things, and would

The Adventurers

By H. B. MARRIOTT WATSON

COPYRIGHT, 1898, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

A lantern, newly lit and shedding a dull glow through the opaque glasses, was set upon the floor and cast the long, black shadow of a man against the wall. He was standing near the short, deep embrasure that yawned in the massive stone walls of the drum tower, scrutinizing the valley below. What could he be there for? As I wondered, turning over the circumstance in my excited mind, he stooped, and, picking up the lantern, thrust it into the window, waving it from side to side. I suppose this was in response to some signal from the valley, but I paid little heed to it at the time, being suddenly interested in a recognition. It was Hood!

I will confess that the identification of that unmistakable lean body and black head filled me with a sudden ill-quietude of which it would have been hard to give the reason. The very silence of the man soved fear and mistrust in my heart. And so it was that instead of breaking from our hiding place and seizing the important intruder I put a hand on Montgomery and constrained him to retire with me into the lower passages. We concealed ourselves in one of the side galleries and there awaited Hood's return, for that he would return I had no doubt. Evidently he and Scombombe communicated with each other by means of flashing lights, and it was equally evident that Scombombe's signal must have been to postpone action. I could see pretty plainly the method Hood intended to adopt. He was to admit the marauders to the castle by lowering the drawbridge and raising the portcullis, after which they would have the three of us at their mercy. But the presence of the police in the neighborhood had saved us from that fate for one night at least, and, thanks to Montgomery's quick ears, it would be strange if we did not manage to put another face on the position by the morrow.

I was right in my conjecture, for shortly afterward we heard the returning feet sound along the stones. He passed the end of our passage, holding his lantern before him, and when he had disappeared we hurried out into the corridor and sped after him. Once we saw the spot of light that glowed in the vicinity of that shadowy figure and waver. I dare say that some sound had caught his ear, and he turned and listened. We shrank into the protection of the wall until the footsteps had resumed their way. By this time I had guessed his errand, or at least his destination. He was bound for the treasure chamber in the keep and had probably come from there previously. Possibly it had been his hiding place. Here again my assumption proved correct, and we watched him open the cupboard in the wall and snatch the expert lantern and all into the abyss.

"We must take him tonight," said I to Montgomery. "It won't do to let him get out of range."

Montgomery nodded and, cautiously approaching, pulled open the door in the wall. Drawing himself up, he clambered through the space and slid down into the farther room, making wonderfully small noise for so huge a body. I followed. But Hood was not in the lower room—at least there was no light to pierce the utter darkness—and, moreover, I think we both knew that he was in the loft above us. Together we crawled up the steps and once more looked in through the friendly aperture of a door upon the chief of our bitter enemies. Hood, kneeling upon the floor, was bent over the chests which contained the treasure.

Suddenly he started and lifted his head. It may have been that the door creaked, or perhaps he caught the sound of our breathing. All I know is that the next moment, and just as Montgomery leaped forward at a stride upon him, he put out his arm and with a swift movement overturned the lantern. The room was at once plunged in darkness, darkness so thick and gravelike that it was insupportable. Eternal night dwelt and brooded in those rayless dungeons, and she resumed her empire greedily from that mock, usurping candle. Montgomery's rush carried him to the corner where the boxes lay, but he encountered no one. Hood by some slippery movement had glided away, and where he was in the solid darkness neither of us could say. I gathered this from the silence that ensued upon Montgomery's spring. I heard him pick himself up, and then there was a hush. I stood with my back against the door in a state of intense suspense. There came a slight soft sound, and a dagger whizzed past me and struck in the oak with a loud tang. I sprang forward, but my list took the air.

Montgomery, from his corner, made a rush toward me, and I heard another of those hoarse "tang"s and an exclamation of pain. Then there fell silence again, and presently an invisible person seemed to pass before me. I thrust out my arms, and again a soft and slender form touched me gently, and there came the clink and clatter of a knife upon the wall, pinning my coat sleeve to the woodwork; but upon that there bore down upon us the swirling form of Montgomery, and two people were fighting upon the floor before me. Tap, tap, tap went the hoarse knife upon the floor, and then silence again, broken only by heavy noises in the throat. With formidable fears in my breast, I struck a match, casting a thread of light upon the scene of the struggle. Hood lay in Montgomery's arms, crumpled like a snake whose back is broken, one hand (which held a knife) stretched inert along the floor, his head thrown back, his face white with terror, and his eyes lowered over his strange eyes.

"Good heavens, you have killed him!" said I.

Montgomery looked doubtful. "I don't think so," he panted; "but he was the very devil to tackle with that knife of his. I may have squeezed too hard. Something did crack, but—"

I pulled him aside. "Light the lantern, old chap," I said.

Hood fell loosely to the floor as Montgomery moved his arms, and opened his eyes, which fell on me sharp and ardent, burning with a violent light. He sat up.

"You have me, sir," he remarked.

"Yes, my man," said I cheerfully. "I think we may go so far as to say that."

Hood turned on his side, and I kicked the dagger out of his reach.

"If you don't mind, sir, I should like to be cutting something," he said quietly.

"I've had nothing all day."

He looked toward the treasure chests and I perceived upon one of these the preparations for a meal. I laughed.

"You know the house well, I see, Hood."

"Yes, sir," said he. "I've done a good deal of foraging, sir, at one time and another."

"Very well. Have your meal," I agreed. "Any bones broken?"

"Thank you, sir; none, sir. A bit stiff, sir; that's all."

"Then I think we'll leave you to your supper, Hood," I said. I examined the candle in the lantern; it would last some hours. Ere it burned out I would revisit the prisoner with some supplies.

"You are not going to keep him here?" asked Montgomery in some surprise.

I nodded. "For the present."

We passed out, and I turned the key in the lock.

"He'll stifle in there," expostulated Montgomery.

"Oh, dear, no!" said I. "It's not the first time the keep has been used as a

Health and Beauty

Beauty is the external proof of health; with failing health comes failing beauty. Woman's delicate organism is frequently over-taxed by arduous household duties, and the demands of society. The constant drain upon her vitality weakens her nervous system. The penalty is a tired, worn-out, exhausted condition which destroys her appetite, robs her of rest, and at intervals causes much suffering and distress. When these conditions exist, the weakened nerves must be strengthened. Dr. Miles' Nervine will do this. It stimulates the action of all the organs, brings refreshing sleep, and drives away that look of care.

"I have taken Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for years, as did my mother before me. Whenever I feel tired, worn-out, or have headache, I always take the Nervine and it strengthens me. I consider it a great remedy for nervousness or debility."

I think the boy took a grewsome fear of me on that occasion, regarding me with horror as a malevolent and barbarous tyrant, but in truth I had a purpose in my seeming malice, as will appear.

CHAPTER XIV.

WE had now a prisoner of war, lawfully taken in the flagrant act, and must consider what to do with him. For myself, I had already solved the riddle in my own way. To say the truth, I was getting a distaste for the adventure. It implied too many hard knocks, too rough a usage for a summer holiday, and, what was much worse, it entailed on me a grave responsibility.

It seemed to me that the drift of these lawless events was wholly in the direction of murder. The word was ugly enough, but it must be faced. Murder is what the law would call it, and murder was what it came near being at the best. The capture of Hood, then, opened a road of escape, and I had already resolved to employ it. Of course it would have been possible still to have surrendered the treasure to the crown or to have handed it into the possession of Scombombe's party; but, though I was reluctant to continue the bloody struggle, I was certainly indisposed to hand down my flag. If it were to be peace, it should be peace with honor. And, lastly, the body of Hood gave me my means.

I was able after some argument to carry my point with the others. They had both a kindly fancy for the lighting and were inclined to take my announcement in a capful manner. But I explained that I was making no decision of myself; that I was one of three and that I had merely offered the suggestion as my contribution to the counsel of war. Upon that I added the very cogent reasons which I had prepared in favor of my advice, and the end of the talk was that they accepted the plans I unfolded.

To execute my scheme it was necessary to see Scombombe. But first I must pay a visit to the prisoner, who by the time we had arrived at a conclusion had lain in the blackness of that abominable dungeon for five hours. Sheppard, indeed, had been eager to interview him, and upon hearing of the capture had at once betaken himself to the keep. He was absent half an hour, but I did not inquire what he had been doing. I merely looked at him interrogatively when he returned, which he did wearing a graver face than was usual to him. Nothing the inquiry in my glance, he shook his head.

"That man is dangerous," he said, "abnormally dangerous."

"Montgomery and I have occasion to know that," I replied. "He is a snake—that is the substantive—and I doubt very much whether we can kill him."

"I have my doubts whether we can even scotch him," said Sheppard dryly, and then dismissed the subject.

Yet my conversation with Hood later was very commonplace and marked by no particular points. He kept his customary face of obsequiousness and gave me the briefest replies to my interrogations. I was specially exercised in my mind as to the manner of his entrance into the castle. For all his dexterity and cunning, I could not see how, carefully watched as our fortress was, he had managed to gain admittance over the drawbridge and through the closed portcullis. At the question, which was delivered point blank, he turned his luminous eyes upon me and regarded me with a shifty smile, the shadow of a smile, betokening no unmeaning.

"I don't mind telling you, sir," he murmured, "though it's not what I would say to most gentlemen. But you have been a gentleman, sir, throughout, and I should be proud to have served you. I came with the party in the morning, sir."

"What," said I, "you were with the storming party?"

"Yes, sir. Seeing you engaged, I crept away. I know the house, sir, being with my poor master so long. And I don't hold with violence where you can do without it."

I opened my eyes. The man's plans were conceived with excellent craft. It would be the last thing I should have thought of, and yet it was so simple to take advantage of the confusion and secrete himself upon the battlements after his allies had fled.

"You are a rascal, Hood," I returned, "not without admiration. But you are a clever rascal."

"Thank you, sir," said Hood.

"Yes," I continued, "you have had a smart shot for it, but your game is up, my man. Clever as you are, I have you engaged, and I think Captain Scombombe and his secondaries are further from the gold than ever."

"It looks like it, sir," admitted Hood.

I looked round upon the dark and gloomy walls. "This is a man's hole for a man of your parts to be fostering in," I said, "but I see no choice before you. You have made your own bed, and you must lie in it. A man might rot here and drop into the bones of a skeleton without sound or sense of the outside world. The bodies of many captives have decayed within these gloomy walls."

Pleasant and Most Effective.

T. J. Chambers, Ed. Vindicator, Liberty, Texas, writes Dec. 25, 1902:

"With pleasure and unhesitatingly I bear testimony to the curative power of Ballard's Horehound Syrup."

I have used it in my family and can cheerfully affirm it is the most effective and best remedy for coughs and colds I have ever used." Sold by Alley & List.

HAPLESS MAN.

He Went Back and the Goblins Got Him.

Union City, Tenn., Jan. 12.—Abe Walker, colored, was tried in circuit court on the charge of bootlegging, on six cases, and was found guilty in one. The penalty is not more than a fine of $50 and twelve months in jail.

Abe is the darky whose joint was destroyed by the angry citizens of the town when the chief of police and one of his men were shot in a raid on a crap game last year. Abe was under indictment at the time for violating the Adams law, but jumped his bond and went to Missouri, from which state he brought suit in the federal court at Jackson against Will White, J. C. Birdick and Ed. Kirkland of this city for destroying his business for $10,000. Abe appeared at Jackson at the last term of federal court to prosecute the case, but had hardly landed in the city before Deputy Sheriff Enloe Chiles of this county took him in charge and brought him here and landed him behind the bars, where he has been since.

Judge Halden has not yet assessed Abe's penalty. Should he get the limit, $50 and twelve months, it will be some time before he can attend to his suit for damages, as the corporation has a hundred cases against him, which, with the sentence of the circuit court, will keep him in jail something like two years.

RECORD-BREAKING MARCH.

Uncle Sam's Soldiers March Almost Exhausted.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 12.—The 6th battery, United States artillery, which left Fort Riley, Kan., on November 18 on a practice march for Fort Sam Houston, Tex., passed through here. The distance that will have been covered is more than a thousand miles. It is the longest march ever made by artillery, being considerably longer than Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. A squadron of United States cavalry made a longer march than this in 1887, when it went overland from Fort Sam Houston to North Dakota.

The men, officers and horses of the 6th battery are in an exhausted condition. The men are almost without clothing and the horses are poor and so weak that they can hardly drag the artillery pieces over the rough roads. Private J. T. Hall died here this morning as a result of exposure and fatigue.

Bent Her Double.

"I knew no one, for four weeks, when I was sick with lymphoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Annie Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa., "and when I got better, although I had one of the best doctors I could get, I was bent double, and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful." Guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders; at W. B. McPherson's Drug Store; price 50c.

CUSTODIAN QUITS.

Capt. J. C. Ford in Charge of Pythian Home at Lexington Vacated Institute Yesterday.

Capt. J. C. Ford, who was appointed custodian of the Pythian Widows and Orphans' Home at Lexington, vacated the institution yesterday to establish a residence in Lexington, made necessary by his having been elected to a city office. Another custodian will relieve Capt. Ford.

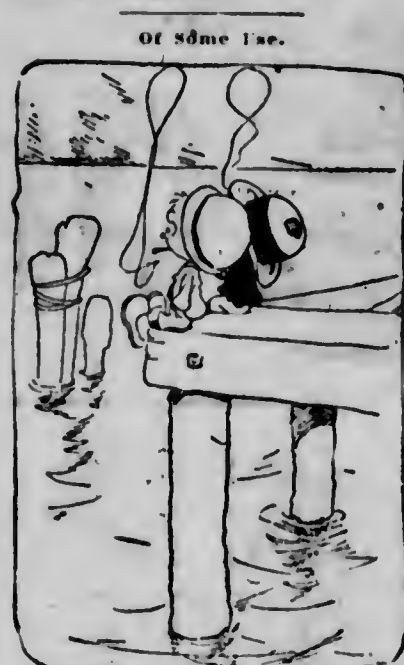

The home property has never been used for the purpose intended, owing to dissatisfaction over a provision by which the county of Fayette is permitted to place indigents in the institution in consideration of a $5,000 gift to the home. At the last session of the grand lodge the property was ordered to be sold.

SOBERING-UP ROOM.

Is Suggested by a Minister for Drunkards.

Chillicothe, Mo., Jan. 12.—A hand some ly fited "sobering-up room" for jagglers was advocated by Rev. J. W. Alton, pastor of the Elm street Methodist church, in the course of a temperance talk at the union prayer service here.

"These poor men who get drunk are the ones who really pay the saloon licenses," said Mr. Alton. "They are the men who reduce our taxes 25 or 30 cents a head, and when we depend on these saloons for revenue and license them to sell intoxicants, it is not fair or just to look up in a 'cooler' the man who patronizes them."

"What we should do is provide a handsomely furnished room, with luxurious couches and other comforts that the fellow who is paying the taxes may sleep off his drunk there."

A Popular Fallacy Exploded.

"Little yellow specks on the wrapper are positive indications of a cigar's excellence. Choose a specked cigar, and you can't go wrong."

The speaker was a skate salesman. The tobacco salesman laughed at him.

"Are you a victim of that error, too?" he said. "Listen, and I'll tell you all about those little yellow specks."

"We are in Cuba. In nine-long rows grow the tobacco plants in a blinding sunlight. Suddenly the sky is overcast, a shower falls. Then the clouds disappear and the sun shines again upon plants dotted here and there with immense raindrops—raindrops peculiar to Cuba, as large as the largest pearls."

"These drops become burning glasses in the sunlight. The same as real lenses, they concentrate the sun's heat, and on the leaf beneath them the little specks that you venerate are burnt. These little yellow specks indicate the tobacco's quality no more than freckles on a man's nose indicate his ability."

"To choose cigars by their specks is as foolish as it would be to choose salesmen by their freckles."—Globe-Democrat.

The United States consumes all of its annual iron output of 33,000,000 tons. England consumes 6,000,000 tons more than its 14,000,000-ton output, and Germany 5,000,000 more than its 21,000,000-ton output.
